

A-EON Technology

NEWS RELEASE

A-EON Technology acquires AMIGA.org

Cardiff 11th June 2014

A-EON Technology is pleased to announce that it is the new custodian of AMIGA.org the world's oldest and longest running English language Amiga community web forum.

A-EON acquired AMIGA.org from the previous custodian, Bill Panagouleas of DiscreetFX, in an agreement which saw the transfer of the AMIGA.org website and contents, the domain name together with all of the AMIGA.org brands and rights including the official Facebook and Twitter accounts.

A-EON would like to thank Bill for his stewardship of Amiga.org over the past few years. Matthew Leaman, A-EON Managing director, said of the purchase, "our acquisition of AMIGA.org is part of our long term strategy to help support and expand the Amiga community. We are really excited by this development". Outgoing custodian Bill Panagouleas added, "I enjoyed my AMIGA.org experience and am pleased to place the stewardship in the excellent hands of true Amiga enthusiasts. AMIGA.org is safe and secure with A-EON Technology Limited." Trevor Dickinson, A-EON's co-founder also commented, "speaking as an Amiga enthusiast, I am extremely proud to be associated with this great piece of Amiga history. AMIGA.org is oldest Amiga web portal, serving the Amiga community since 1994. This year marks the 20th anniversary of its founding and with the help of the Amiga community, whether it be Classic, Next-Generation, Emulation or new Retro hardware we hope to make AMIGA.org an essential resource for all Amiga related news and information. Here's to the next 20 years!"

For more information please email: contact@a-eon.com or visit the A-EON Technology website at www.a-eon.com

Supporting the Amiga community

